

Vibrant Colour Lab

Five experts. One room. No safe choices.

Each expert brings a vibrant accent + soft secondary pairing rooted in their discipline.

1. Lisa — Lagos Fashion Colorist

Pulls from ankara wax prints and Yoruba beadwork. "Nigerian color is never shy. It announces itself."

Aso Orange

#FF6B35

VIBRANT

Pure Lagos sunset. The orange of danfo buses, of palm oil in motion, of a city that never sleeps. Impossible to scroll past.

#FFF0E5

Warm Glow

The light inside a room where someone is cooking jollof.

2. Paula — Pentagram Brand Strategist

Thinks in systems and recognition. "Your accent color should be identifiable at 5px on a phone screen."

Signal Red

#E63946

VIBRANT

Not blood red. Not danger red. The warm, decisive red of someone who means what they say. Urgent without being aggressive.

#F1E4DE

Hush

Barely-there warmth. Like the pause before someone speaks something important.

3. Dayo — West African Cultural Colorist

Rooted in adire indigo, uli art, and Benin bronze patinas. "Our ancestors were not minimalists with colour."

Hibiscus Punch

#D4326D

VIBRANT

The exact color of zobo when you hold it up to light. Magenta-warm, unmistakably tropical, unmistakably ours.

#FAE6ED

Petal

A diluted whisper of the hibiscus itself. Feminine without being fragile.

4. Kéré — Architect & Material Thinker

Thinks about color as it exists in physical Nigerian landscapes. "I don't pick colors. I find them in laterite and sky."

Harmattan Gold

#F5A623

VIBRANT

The deep, saturated gold of late dry-season light hitting red earth. Not metallic — alive. Brighter than your current gold by three stops.

#EDE7D9

Dry Earth

The pale dust that settles on everything in harmattan. Neutral but warm.

5. Ire — Digital-First Product Designer

Builds for screens, dark mode, and app icons. "If your accent color doesn't pop on a phone at arm's length, it doesn't exist."

Hot Coral

#FF4D6A

VIBRANT

The color that makes your thumb stop scrolling. Warm-pink-red that glows on screens, especially against your Iroko Green. Gen-Z-ready without losing gravitas.

#F7EDE2

Silk

Warmer than white, cooler than cream. The perfect digital paper.
